

In case of an emergency

Get accurate information first!

In case of a nuclear emergency, Ibaraki Prefecture and Tokai Village will promptly announce information, using disaster management radio communications, TV, radio, webpages, social networking sites (SNS), emergency alert emails, and sound trucks.

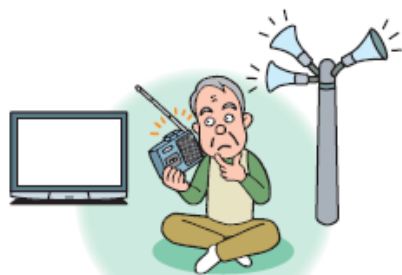

Use the information to help stay calm. Take note of the following points:

- Obtain accurate information, using TV, radio and/or the Internet. Listen carefully to make sure you understand the information correctly.
- Do not act as you wish or against the public advice. Stay indoors until there are further instructions from the national or municipal government.
- Do not be misled by rumors or false information.
- Exchange information with your neighbors and check their safety.
- Refrain from asking for information by phone as much as possible, as phone calls may occupy phone lines unnecessarily and hinder emergency response activities.

Major information from Tokai Village

1. What happened, at which facility, at what time?
2. How are national and municipal governments responding?
3. Is the accident or disaster still expanding, or has it been contained?

Summary: Do not act as you wish. Stay indoors.

Obtain accurate information from sources such as radio, TV or disaster management radio communications.

Exchange information with your neighbors and check their safety.

Refrain from asking for information by phone as much as possible, as phone calls may occupy phone lines unnecessarily and hinder emergency response activities.

Do not be misled by rumors or false information.